REGULATIONS

DETERMINING THE TAXABLE QUANTITY OF DISTILLED SPIRITS BY WEIGHING.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF THE
COMMISSIONER OF INTERNAL REVENUE,
Washington, November 1, 1900.

Under the provisions of section 3249 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, for the prevention and detection of frauds by distillers of spirits, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue is empowered to prescribe such hydrometers, weighing and gauging instruments, or other means for ascertaining the strength and quantity of spirits subject to tax as he may deem necessary; also to prescribe rules and regulations to secure a uniform and correct system of inspection, weighing, marking and gauging of spirits.

By virtue of said provisions, and in the exercise of the authority thus conferred, and as a means for the prevention of fraud, as well as of securing greater accuracy, weighing by the use of scales is hereby prescribed for the official determination of the number of gallons of spirits in casks or packages, concurrently with the continued partial use of the gauging rod and wantage rod heretofore prescribed.

United States gaugers, and persons holding commission as "storekeeper and gauger," and on duty as such, will be supplied with weighing beams and appliances, as herein provided, and will thereafter use the same exclusively—except as directed below—for the official determination of the contents of casks or packages of spirits.

USE OF GAUGING AND WANTAGE RODS.

Until otherwise directed, the standard gauging rod and wantage rod may be used by the officers mentioned for ascertaining the wine gallons contents of packages solely as enumerated in the four following paragraphs:

1. On regauging casks or packages of spirits which did not have their weight determined and marked when filled.

2. At all fruit distilleries where the production is so limited as not to require the attendance of a gauger at least twice a week during the season when in operation. (All fruit distilleries producing 10,000 gallons of brandy annually, or above, should be visited by a gauger at least twice a week during the season.)

3. At the establishments of rectifiers rectifying less than 5,000 proof gallons of spirits annually. Provided, however, That where the daily attendance of a gauger is required at such establishments the inspection will be by weighing, and where a weighing beam has been put in use at a rectifying house its use will be continued thereat, notwithstanding the fact that the owner may subsequently rectify less than 5,000 proof gallons in any one year.

It is expected that the records of the rectifying business at all houses where the inspection is by the use of the rod will be carefully scrutinized from month to month to determine if at any time the quantity of spirits rectified during any special-tax year exceeds 5,000 gallons, and whenever that point is reached, collectors will take measures to require the use of scales.

4. For ascertaining the contents of casks or packages of spirits, both when about to be dumped for rectification and after completion of the process of rectification, which contain saccharine matter or other material to such an extent that no indication is shown on the hydrometer stem, or when, although an incorrect indication is shown by the stem, the presence of saccharine matter in large proportions is unmistakably apparent.

Even in case of the goods described in the last paragraph, however, the gauger who gauges spirits after rectification will, except at houses where the use of the scales is not required in any case, as specified in above paragraph numbered 3, determine the gross weight of the package and mark the same on the bung stave of the barrel, preceding the other marks required by regulation to be placed thereon.

WEIGHING BEAM.

Fairbanks' weighing beam has been adopted for use in pursuance of these regulations, and will be procured and used as directed herein.

Accompanying each beam are two poises (one of 8 pounds and one of 16 pounds), a set of barrel hooks, and a counterpoise to the barrel hooks. This combination will be termed a "weighing beam complete." On each side of the beam is a double set of figures, the upper set indicating the reading in pounds of the 8-pound poise—in which case each notch represents one-half pound—and the lower set of figures indicating the reading of the 16-pound poise, each notch on the beam representing, in this instance, 1 pound. Thus, for example, if the larger poise rests in the "300" notch in the lower row of figures and the small poise in the seventh notch beyond the "50" in the upper scale, the total weight is $300+53\frac{1}{2}=353\frac{1}{2}$ pounds.

It will be found convenient to determine the sum total indicated by both poises if the large poise be allowed to remain continually in a notch indicating a number of pounds divisible by 10, as in the above example.

Thus, where the weight of a barrel and its contents range from, say, 300 to 440 pounds, the large poise can rest continuously in the 300-pound notch, and the addition thereto of the weight indicated by the small poise is thereby facilitated.

PROCUREMENT OF WEIGHING BEAMS, ETC.

Weighing beams, poises, and barrel hooks for use of internal-revenue officers, as directed herein, will be supplied at the expense of the Government, but the means for anchoring and suspending casks when weighed must be provided by parties for whom spirits are inspected.

Collectors are expected to exercise due economy in making requisition for weighing beams and appliances and to refrain from applying for such instruments in excess of present actual requirements of the service, as set forth herein.

Care will be particularly exercised to see that all beams in the district are in actual use prior to making requisition for additional ones.

In making requisition for weighing beams complete, collectors will state the particular place or places at which beams are required and the number of gauging officers assigned to each place.

In the event that several gaugers are on duty at the same distillery or rectifying house it is quite probable that each one will not require a weighing beam. In all instances, therefore, where requisition is made for more than one weighing beam for use at any distillery or rectifying house, the collector will state in such requisition the number of gaugers on duty thereat, as well as the average number of packages inspected daily at each place.

Immediately upon receiving weighing beams, etc., the collector will receipt for the same to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and state their condition on reception.

The number of "weighing beams complete" received will be taken up as such and duly returned on Forms 152 and 289, and whenever a weighing beam is issued, proper record thereof will be made by the collector on his Record 99. All weighing beams issued since December, 1897, are marked for identification with a serial number on the under side of the thick part or butt end of the beam proper.

Officers having beams in their possession will be held to the same responsibility therefor, and required to duly account for such property, as provided in case of Government hydrometers.

Collectors will hold officers to a rigid accountability in this matter and decline to approve the pay account of any officer failing to duly account for the beam on Form 289 or to turn the same over to the proper officer on retiring from the service.

In all instances where distilleries are permanently suspended, or suspend without spirits in warehouse and with no expectation of resuming operations for a period of three months or upwards, the beams in use thereat should be returned to the collector or to the proper division deputy collector, to be issued for service elsewhere as occasion requires.

EXTRA SETS OF POISES AND BARREL HOOKS.

Should a gauging officer be assigned to more than one place where weighing is required, extra sets of poises and barrel hooks will be supplied for retention at the most important of such places when it is shown that a saving of transportation would thereby be effected.

Extra appliances as above will, however, be furnished for retention only at houses where their use is frequently required.

Collectors making requisition for extra poises and barrel hooks will, therefore, state explicitly the necessity for the same, designating the distillery or rectifying house at which they are to be retained and the probable number of monthly visits which the gauger will be required to make at each.

"Extra sets of appliances," supplied as above, will be receipted for and duly returned as such in the same manner as weighing beams complete, and gaugers having charge of the same will be held responsible therefor, and expected to see that they are kept in some place where not likely to be subjected to misuse.

USE AND CARE OF WEIGHING BEAMS AND APPLIANCES.

Weighing beams and appliances will be carefully housed in a dry, secure place, where they will not be subjected to rough usage or be liable to rust on account of dampness. At all times when beams are not in use at distilleries they should be locked up, either in the cistern room or in the bonded warehouse, where such places are adapted for the purpose. In using the beams they should be kept as nearly horizontal as possible. In no instance should the cask be raised by using the beam as a lever, as such course destroys the knife edge of the pivots. The poise should not be moved along the top of the notches on the beam, but should in all cases be raised and placed in the notch. In no instance must the poises be used for other than their intended purpose, nor must foreign matter be permitted to adhere thereto as either course tends to render the same inaccurate.

In case a beam becomes inaccurate for any reason, the collector will report the fact to this office, stating as explicitly as possible the nature and extent of the defect, and will await instructions as to the disposition to be made of the imperfect beam.

USE OF SCALES OTHER THAN THE PRESCRIBED WEIGHING BEAM.

If parties for whom distilled spirits are inspected elect to furnish their own scales for the use of the United States gauger, that course may be pursued, provided the scales so furnished are correct, in good condition, of sufficient capacity, and found to be accurate by actual test made by the gauger in each instance before using. This permission includes the use of platform scales as well as other forms of weighing apparatus which conform to the foregoing requirements.

EXAMINATION OF WEIGHING BEAM.

Before proceeding to weigh, on any occasion, the officer will carefully examine the weighing beam to be assured that the same is in good condition. Care will be particularly exercised to see that the beam is properly adjusted and that it balances perfectly with the barrel hooks and counterpoise attached. The accuracy of the beam will also be tested each day by weighing the 16-pound poise by the use of the 8-pound poise.

READING OF SCALE.

Pains will be taken at all times to note the correct reading of the scale to the half pound, and, in case of doubt as to which notch shall be read, the cask will be allowed to preponderate; that is, the notch denoting the lesser weight will be read.

EXAMINATION OF CASKS BEFORE WEIGHING.

Officers are required to examine each cask or package before weighing the same empty, and will not inspect any package which is not thoroughly dry, or which contains or has on its exterior any substance which will prevent the correct ascertainment of the tare of the cask.

THE WEIGHING SYSTEM.

WEIGHING CASKS OF SPIRITS ON ENTRY INTO DISTILLERY WAREHOUSE.

The weight of the empty cask will be determined immediately preceding the filling of the same in all cases, and the tare of a number of casks may be ascertained and marked before any are filled, but not exceeding the number which are to be filled before the gauger leaves them. The tare, or weight of the empty cask, will be cut on the bung stave as soon as ascertained.

As soon as the capacity of the cask or package has been ascertained, and the wantage adjusted, as provided herein, the gross weight, also in pounds and half pounds, will be carefully determined.

In case, however, no wantage is desired reweighing for the determination of the gross weight will not be necessary, the same having been found by the weighing performed for the ascertainment of capacity as set forth below.

After the required weighing has been performed and proof determined from the indication and temperature of the spirits by reference to Table No. 5 of the Gaugers' Manual, the wine and proof gallons contents of the cask will be found as directed herein under the head of "Determination of Net Wine Gallons and Proof Gallons."

CAPACITY OF CASKS TO BE DETERMINED BY WEIGHING AND MARKED—METHOD OF FINDING CAPACITY DESCRIBED.

The capacity of casks must be ascertained, marked, and reported in all instances when original official inspection of spirits is made by weighing. Casks will be filled to the bunghole when weighed for the ascertainment of capacity.

The proof of the spirits in each cask or package must be determined with great care immediately preceding such weighing, and if overflow of spirits occurs during this determination, by reason of the insertion of a pipette or thief into the cask, the same will be replaced prior to weighing for capacity.

The weight of the contents of the full cask having been ascertained, fractions of the resulting wine gallons will be treated as follows in the ascertainment of capacity: Any fraction less than 0.25 will be dropped; if 0.25, or any intermediate fraction to and including 0.75, it will be called one-half gallon; if above 0.75 to the unit, it will be called a whole gallon.

Correction of volume will be applied in inverse order to apparent wine gallons capacity thus determined to arrive at the true capacity of the cask at 60° F.; that is to say, add to the contents when the temperature of the spirits is above the prescribed standard of 60° F., and subtract when below 60°.

The reason for this will be apparent when it is considered that when a cask is weighed full of spirits, having a temperature of, say, 95° F., the said cask will not be full when the temperature of the spirits declines to 60° (owing to the contraction which occurs by reason of the fall in temperature), although the weight of the spirts will be the same as when weighed in the higher temperature.

This shows that the weighing did not determine the capacity of the cask, but merely its contents at 60° F., and that a certain percentage (shown in the right-hand column of Table No. 5 of the Gaugers' Manual) should be added to or subtracted from the apparent capacity, as the case may be, to show the actual capacity; that is, the number of gallons which the cask will hold when the temperature of the spirits is at 60°.

To illustrate: If a barrel of spirits having an indication of 115 and a temperature of 93 is found, when full, to have a net weight of 348 pounds, the resulting wine gallons at that temperature are found by the table to be 44.75, to be called 44½, under the above rule. The correction of volume is 1.6, and amounts to half a gallon in this instance. (See Table No. 3 in the Gaugers' Manual.)

Applying this correction in inverse order gives the capacity of the cask as 45 gallons. In case the temperature should be below 60° F., the correction of volume should be subtracted.

After the capacity of the cask has been ascertained the distiller will be permitted to adjust the wantage, strict compliance with the regulations in the Gaugers' Manual as to exact wantage being required, after which the contents of the cask will be determined by weighing.

This adjustment of the wantage and reweighing for the ascertainment of contents will be performed immediately after the capacity has been ascertained, and, whenever practicable, it may be done without previously removing the cask from the scales. In case a cask can not be completely filled, as above indicated, because the distillery cisterns are exhausted, or by reason of any lack of spirits, the contents will be ascertained by weighing as usual, but the capacity thereof must be determined by the use of the gauging rod. All instances of this kind will be explained on the gauger's return by a footnote to the effect that the cask, mentioning its number, was insufficiently filled.

MARKING BUNG STAVE.

The capacity of the cask, determined as above directed, will be cut on the bung stave immediately adjacent to the bunghole and on the side thereof opposite to the stamp head.

The remaining results of the weighing, ascertained as above, will be cut upon the bung stave on the side of the bunghole nearest to the stamp head, as follows, and in the order named:

The gross weight, the tare, the net weight, the wine gallons contents, the proof, and the proof gallon contents. In case the cask has been previously used, the letter "R" (signifying reused) will be cut directly before the figures indicating the tare. Fractions of gallons will be retained to two decimal places, and weights will be expressed in pounds and half pounds.

Where the proof is exactly 100 the wine gallons need not be cut on the bung stave.

In all instances the required marks on the bung staves of casks will be cut in legible and durable characters.

The above instructions as to weighing casks of spirits and marking the bung staves thereof will be fully observed in all cases where gaugers are called upon to weigh spirits at the time the same are placed in the casks.

MARKING AND BRANDING HEADS OF CASKS.

The existing regulations in the Gaugers' Manual as to marking, branding and stamping the heads of casks will be observed in all instances, and in addition thereto it is required that whenever a charred cask is filled for entry into distillery warehouse it shall be the duty of the gauging officer to cut or burn the letter "C" upon the stamp head of such cask just beneath the end of the bung stave.

DETERMINATION OF NET WINE GALLONS AND PROOF GALLONS.

After having determined the net weight and proof of the contents of the cask, its actual wine gallons and proof gallons contents may be found by reference to the subjoined "Table No. 1."

In case, however, the net weight or proof of the contents of the cask should be other than shown in that table, the wine gallons contents may readily be ascertained by reference to Table No. 2 herein.

To the full instructions which immediately precede said table it might be added that the fractional part of a wine gallon represented by a half pound may be determined by removing the decimal point three places to the left in the column of 1,000 pounds, opposite to the indicated per cent of proof, and dividing the number thus changed by 2. Thus 1,000 pounds of spirits of, for example, 98 proof are found on page 635 to equal 128.2 wine gallons. It follows that 1 pound equals 0.1282 of a gallon, and one-half pound, 0.0641 of a gallon. (See instructions as to "Table No. 6 of the Gaugers' Manual" herein.)

CORRECTION OF VOLUME.

As the number of net wine gallons at 60° F. is found from the weight and strength of the spirits, no correction of volume is required in the determination of the wine gallons contents, by weighing.

For instructions as to application of correction of volume in weighing for capacity, see page 11 herein.

WEIGHING SPIRITS IN WAREHOUSE UPON REQUEST OF DISTILLER.

Whenever a distiller makes due request to have regauged any distilled spirits deposited in distillery warehouse, special bonded warehouse, or general bonded warehouse, as provided in section 50 of the act of August 28, 1894, or in the act of March 3, 1899, gauging officers, when so directed by the collector, will make a careful inspection of the spirits embraced in the distiller's request, and cut on the bung stave of each cask, on the side of the bunghole opposite to the stamp head, and in the order named, the gross weight, as then ascertained, in pounds and half pounds, the present weight of the empty cask (reference being had in this connection to the "Schedule of Increase in Tare"), the net weight, the present actual wine gallons thus determined, the proof of the spirits, and the proof gallons resulting therefrom.

In case of packages which have been regauged on request prior to the expiration of forty-eight months, the result of which regauge already appears on the bung stave on the side of the bunghole opposite to the stamp head, the required details of the regauge on request prior to the expiration of eighty-four months, in a proper case, will be cut upon the stave to the right of the bung stave (looking from the stamp head), on the side of the bunghole opposite to the stamp head. In such cases the marks of the withdrawal gauge will be made upon the stave to the right of the bung stave, on the side of the bunghole nearest to the stamp head.

(For instructions as to marking the bung stave where the capacity of the package was determined and cut when originally weighed, see page 18, herein.)

In case the contents of the cask were originally determined by the use of the gauging rod, the reinspection will be made in like manner, and the result will be cut on the bung stave, as directed in the Gauger's Manual.

Where the distiller does not request a regauge before the expiration of the time allowed by law, tax must be collected on the quantity contained in each cask or package as shown by the original gauge.

(For marking and stamping casks of spirits on removal from distillery warehouse to general bonded warehouse, on arrival of spirits at the general bonded warehouse, on removal of spirits from one general bonded warehouse to another, on arrival at the second warehouse, on withdrawal of spirits from a bonded warehouse for exportation, on withdrawal from bonded warehouse for scientific purposes, or for use in the manufacture of sugar from sorghum, or on change of package in distillery warehouse, or in general or special bonded warehouse to prevent leakage, see the Gauger's Manual and No. 7—Revised.)

WEIGHING SPIRITS ON WITHDRAWAL FROM WAREHOUSE ON PAYMENT OF TAX.

Upon withdrawal of spirits from warehouse the same will be carefully regauged and inspected where they have been previously regauged in warehouse on request of the distiller. The taxes will be collected on the quantity contained in each cask or package, as shown by the original gauge, where the distiller does not request a regauge before the expiration of the time from the date of original entry or gauge allowed therefor by law, or where a larger quantity is found by the final gauge than was shown by the first regauge. In case the spirits have not been regauged in warehouse on request of the distiller, as provided herein, no regauge will be required upon withdrawal from warehouse, unless upon an examination, which the gauger is expected to make, it appears that the spirits have been tampered with, in which case the spirits will be detained in warehouse, a full and complete regauge made, and the facts reported to the collector for instructions. In case a previous regauge has been made on request of the distiller, and the marks then cut on the bung stave on the side of the bunghole opposite the stamp head, as provided herein, the marks showing the result of this second regauge will be cut on the stave to the right of the bung stave on the side of the bunghole nearest the stamp head in the manner directed herein under the head of "Weighing Spirits in Warehouse upon Request of Distiller."

INSPECTION OF SPIRITS IN WAREHOUSE, OR UPON WITHDRAWAL THEREFROM, WHEN IN PACKAGES THE CAPACITY OF WHICH HAS BEEN DETERMINED BY WEIGHING.

Whenever distilled spirits deposited in any distillery warehouse, or general or special bonded warehouse, are inspected in such warehouse upon the request of the distiller, or upon withdrawal from warehouse, or at such other time as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may direct, if the original gauge of such spirits were made on or after May 1, 1894, and the capacity of the packages containing the same were ascertained, marked upon the package, and reported as by regulations required, then, in such case, the regauge of such packages may be made as follows:

The gauging officer will determine by the use of the prescribed wantage rod the ullage or wantage, if any, existing in the cask, using the utmost care to ascertain the same with precision. The wantage, if any be found, will then be deducted from the capacity of the cask or package in wine gallons, which was determined when the cask or package was filled, and cut on the bung stave immediately adjacent to the bunghole, and on the side thereof opposite to the stamp head. The true proof of the spirits will then be taken, and to the wine gallons remaining after the deduction of the wantage from the capacity will then be applied the proper correction of volume, if any, for that quantity of spirits, as shown in Table 3, of the

The several items of the inspection will then be cut upon the bung stave, below the capacity, in the usual order, namely: wantage, correction of volume, proof and proof gallons contents, and will be returned accordingly. In columns 2 and 3 of Form 59 or 59½ the gauger will enter the words: "Capacity taken as cut on bung stave."

Gauging officers will observe the figures denoting the capacity of the cask with care, to see if the same are clearly and perfectly legible and trustworthy, or if they have any appearance of having been altered or in any manner tampered with since they were originally cut. Unless these figures are entirely satisfactory, the gauge will be made by reweighing, in the prescribed manner.

The gauge will be made by reweighing, also, whenever the distiller requests that it be so done, or whenever the collector, for any reason, deems such course advisable.

Collectors will order the reinspection to be by weighing at any distillery where it is found that the reinspection by the use of the wantage rod is being used for purposes detrimental to the revenue.

FRUIT BRANDY.

When fruit brandy is first inspected at fruit distilleries where weighing is required, the gauger will pursue the same course as to weighing the spirits and marking the bung stave as directed herein under the heading of "Weighing Casks of Spirits on Entry into Distillery Warehouse."

Upon reinspection of fruit brandy, previously weighed, for removal from special bonded warehouse, the same will be again weighed where a regauge is required, and marks cut on the bung stave in like manner as required upon similar removal from warehouse of grain spirits.

INSPECTION OF SPIRITS BEFORE RECTIFICATION.

Whenever gaugers are called upon to inspect casks of spirits for dumping for rectification, where weighing is required, the casks, with contents previously weighed, will again be carefully weighed in pounds and half pounds, and the proof of the spirits ascertained.

Where the gauger has no assignment other than to the rectifying house where the weighing is performed or whenever the spirits are to be immediately dumped for rectification, the present tare will be determined by weighing the package after the same has been emptied. In other instances the present tare, upon inspection of spirits for rectification, will be determined as directed under the heading "Soakage or Absorption," on page 21 herein, and will be deducted from the gross weight as thus found, and the resulting net weight, taken in connection with the present proof, will serve as the basis for the determination of the present contents in wine gallons and proof gallons, which are to be reported under the head of "Return of Spirits Gauged," on Form 122. (See instructions hereinafter under the heading "When Compounding is Performed in the Original Packages.")

INSPECTION OF RECTIFIED SPIRITS.

Whenever an inspection is made of spirits upon completion of the process of rectification at rectifying houses at which spirits are required to be weighed, as indicated, the casks or packages in which the same are to be placed must be carefully weighed, while empty, by the gauger, and the weight, in pounds and half pounds, will be by him immediately and legibly cut on the bung stave on the side of the bunghole nearest the stamp head, observing the rule given on page 13 as to reused casks.

Gaugers assigned to duty at rectifying houses may ascertain and mark the tare of such empty packages as are to be filled before the gauger's next visit to the house, in addition to marking the tare on the packages to be filled and stamped before the gauger leaves them.

In case the tare is thus marked upon packages to be filled during the absence of the gauger, he will, in all such instances, durably cut the tare on the bung stave of the package, and mark with a blue pencil a number on the head thereof, followed by his initials, for identification, and make an entry in his notebook of the said marks. In all cases, before weighing the cask thus marked, after it has been filled, the gauger will compare the marks previously made on the package with the entries in his notebook to see that they correspond, and that no change has been made in this particular.

After the rectified spirits have been placed in the cask the gross weight and proof of the contents will be carefully ascertained. The gross weight thus determined will be legibly cut on the bung stave immediately above the weight of the empty package or cask, and beneath the latter will be durably and legibly cut the following in the order named: The net weight, the actual wine gallons, the proof, and proof-gallons contents.

WHEN COMPOUNDING IS PERFORMED IN THE ORIGINAL PACKAGES.

Whenever the spirits are not actually emptied for rectification at houses where weighing is required, the compounding being performed in the original package, it will, of course, be impracticable to weigh the empty package at the time of affixing the rectifier's stamps. In such cases, therefore, the rectifier will efface and obliterate the marks on the bung staves of the packages immediately after the spirits have been weighed for rectification and the portions of the stamps have been cut out as required by regulation, leaving the marks and stamps with slips cut out upon the head until the rectification is completed. As soon as the marks have thus been removed from the bung stave, the gauger who weighed the spirits for rectification will [illegible] sum in pounds will be the present tare, and be so marked and reported. If, however, the package had previously been used when filled and then marked "R," as required, the tare thus marked on the cask will be accepted and taken as the tare on reinspection, and so reported.

TAKING ACTUAL TARE.

When, however, reinspection is made in warehouse of any spirits contained in wooden packages, whether treated as indicated in the preceding paragraph or otherwise, the actual increase in tare by reason of soakage, if any, may be determined, and allowance made therefor as follows: Upon request of the distiller of the spirits at least 20 per cent of the casks to be regauged shall be selected arbitrarily by the gauger and the storekeeper of the warehouse, the contents of each package temporarily removed to a separate vessel apart from all other spirits, and the empty casks weighed, to determine the actual increase in their weight by reason of the absorption of spirits, if any has occurred. The distiller will be required to furnish the help necessary to remove the spirits from the casks and return the same thereto, but he will not be permitted to indicate in any manner the particular casks to be thus emptied. The gauger will attend to this matter personally, and also examine each cask, to see that it is thoroughly drained before he determines its weight when empty. The actual tare of each package thus emptied and weighed will be marked upon the package, and returned accordingly. The average of the increase in tare thus determined will be regarded as the increase of each of the remaining packages enumerated in the collector's order, and regauged that day, and will be so marked and reported if the entire inspection for the day, under the order, covers packages of spirits of the same quality, and which were warehoused within a period of ten days of each other. But if the spirits were of different proofs, originally varying more than 10 per cent, or were warehoused (or gauged as to fruit brandy) at periods differing more than ten days, or if the packages containing the spirits are of different sorts, as plain, or charred, or glued, or otherwise treated so as to close the pores of the wood, the weighing of empty packages must be extended to 20 per cent of each kind or class of spirits as to proof, or date of entry, or gauge, and also to 20 per cent of each class or description of packages, and the averages thus ascertained must be marked and returned as to the unemptied packages of each class or kind of spirits, or of packages, respectively. When the 20 per cent includes any fraction, the fraction will be counted as an additional unit.

For instance, if there are regauged on the same day and under one order 12 packages of whisky three years in warehouse, and 8 packages two years in warehouse, the spirits not differing in proof more than 10 per cent, and being contained in charred packages, 20 per cent of the 12 packages, that is, 2.40, to be reckoned as 3 packages, must be emptied and weighed, and also 20 per cent of the 8 packages, that is, 1.6, reckoned as 2 packages. The actual increase in tare must in each instance be marked on each barrel emptied, and the average increase of tare of the 3 packages is to be added to the marked original tare of the 9 unemptied packages of the three-year whisky as the present tare of such packages, and the average increase of the 2 packages is to be added to the original tare of the 6 unemptied packages of the two-year whisky as the present tare thereof.

Again, if 29 packages of spirits, thirty-five days in warehouse, in glued barrels, and 21 packages of spirits, three days in warehouse, in plain barrels, the spirits being of like proof, are included in same order of inspection and gauged on same day, 20 per cent of first lot, 5.80, reckoned as 6 barrels, must be emptied and weighed, the actual increase in weight of each added to its original tare, and their average increase added to the original tare of the 23 unemptied packages of that lot, and 20 per cent of the second lot, 4.20, reckoned as 5 barrels, must likewise be emptied and weighed, and the actual and average increase added to the original tare, as above directed.

The quantity of spirits which may be absorbed by wooden packages which have been previously filled depends in a great measure upon the time the same remained empty prior to the refilling, and accordingly the average of the increase in tare of such casks will not be made, as provided above, unless at least 50 per cent of the casks are selected and weighed empty in accordance with the foregoing provisions.

It will be observed that the provision as to actual tare extends to and includes all kinds of wooden packages not reused, and is subject to the option of the distiller, who may have his packages so inspected upon request. The option must be exercised before the inspection, for after the actual increase in tare has been ascertained it must prevail, and the gauger will not be permitted to mark the schedule loss upon the packages.

Gauging officers who ascertain the actual increase in tare will report such actual increase as to each package emptied and weighed on Form 331, in addition to the report on Form 59 or 59½, or Form 122 of all packages inspected.

It should be borne in mind, in this connection, that the allowance for loss of spirits while in warehouse, whether by soakage, evaporation, or otherwise, must in no instance exceed that provided in section 50 of the act of August 28, 1894, as amended by the act of March 3, 1899.

REPORTS.

For instructions as to reports required of gauging officers where spirits are weighed and for instructions governing such officers generally, see "U. S. Internal-Revenue Gaugers' Manual."

TABLE SHOWING WINE GALLONS AND PROOF GALLONS BY WEIGHT.

The true per cent proof, and the weight, in pounds and half pounds, of the contents of a package of spirits having been determined, the actual contents thereof in wine gallons and proof gallons will be found in Table No. 1 herein, opposite the number of pounds and beneath "Gallons," on the page showing the indicated per cent of proof.

Should the weight or proof of the contents be represented by an unusual figure, and hence not shown in this table, the wine gallons contents may readily be determined by reference to Table No. 2 herein, which is identical with Table No. 6 in the Gaugers' Manual.

Thus, if the contents of a package of spirits are found to weigh, for example, 424½ pounds, and the proof thereof is 101, the wine gallons contents thereof are found to be 54.59.

Following the instructions immediately preceding said Table No. 2, the result is arrived at as follows: The equivalent of one-half pound is found by removing the decimal point in the number representing the quantity contained in 1,000 pounds (128.59) three places to the left (0.12859) and dividing this decimal by 2, giving a result of 0.064295.

		Gallons.
400	pounds equal	51.44
20	pounds equal	2.572
4	pounds equal	.5144
½	pound equals	.064295
424½	pounds equal	54.590695

Or, the result may be arrived at by multiplying the equivalent of 1 pound by the number of pounds. Thus, .12859×424.5=54.586455 called, as before, 54.59 gallons, the fractions being carried out at their true value in the latter instance.

Fractions will be retained in the final result to two decimal places, the rule for their treatment being as follows:

A fraction of five-thousandths (0.005) or less will be dropped, and any fraction exceeding a five-thousandth will be called one-hundredth (0.01). Thus, 44.605003 gallons should be treated as 44.61 gallons. In case, however, the number is 44.605000 it should be called 44.60 gallons.

It will be observed in the following table that in some instances there is a discrepancy of one-hundredth of a gallon between the number entered in the proof-gallons column and the result which is reached by multiplying the adjacent wine gallons by the particular per cent of proof given.

This apparent discrepancy is occasioned by the fact that in the computation of the proof gallons, indicated in the table, the wine gallons are taken at their full value, all decimals being retained.

To illustrate: Following the rule given above, 71 pounds of spirits of 174 per cent proof equal 10.1033 wine gallons, called and entered in the table as 10.10 wine gallons.

Multiplying this number of gallons by the proof (174), the product is 17.574 proof gallons, called 17.57 under the rule, instead of 17.58, given in the following table.

In case, however, the full number of wine gallons (10.1033) be multiplied by the proof, the result is 17.579742 proof gallons, called 17.58, being the number indicated in the table.

TABLE NO. 6 OF THE GAUGERS' MANUAL.

For convenience of reference Table No. 6 of the Gaugers' Manual has been reprinted as Table No. 2 of this work, and will be found useful in arriving at the contents of packages where the net weight or proof, or both, are so unusual as not to be within the range of Table No. 1.

For the information of any officer who may desire to determine by weight the wine gallons of spirits of odd proofs below 50 per cent (which are not shown in Table No. 2), the rule by which said table is computed is given, as follows:

Multiply the weight of 1 gallon of water at 60° F.—taken as 8.3314 pounds avoirdupois—by the specific gravity of the spirits in question, and the product will equal the number of pounds in 1 gallon of the given spirits. Divide a given number of pounds of spirits by the weight of 1 gallon as above determined, and the quotient will be the number of gallons thereof. Thus, for example, if it is desired to determine the number of gallons in 1,000 pounds of spirits of 139 per cent proof, multiply 8.3314 by .89129—the specific gravity of the spirits found by reference to Table No. 7 of the Gaugers' Manual—the product (7.4256935+) divided into 1,000 gives 134.667+gallons, called 134.67.

PRESENT REGULATIONS CONTINUED IN FORCE.

The instructions contained in the Gaugers' Manual are not superseded by those contained herein, but continue in force so far as is consistent with these regulations.

FOR FINDING THE NUMBER OF GALLONS AT 60° FAHRENHEIT FROM THE WEIGHT AND STRENGTH OF SPIRITUOUS LIQUOR.

FOR FINDING THE NUMBER OF GALLONS AT 60° FAHRENHEIT FROM THE WEIGHT AND STRENGTH OF SPIRITUOUS LIQUOR.

This is a table for gauging by means of the weight of the liquor and the true per cent. The following example fully illustrates its use:

Example.—A cask of spirit of 141 per cent strength (or 41 over proof) weighed 913 pounds net. We find—

	Gallons.
900 pounds equal to	121.54
10 pounds equal to	1.35
3 pounds equal to	.41
Or contents	123.30

that is, 913 pounds of spirit of strength 141 is equivalent to 123.3 gallons at 60° Fahrenheit.

The equivalent gallons for 10 pounds are found from the column 100 pounds by moving the decimal point one place to the left; those for 3 pounds from the column 300 pounds by moving the decimal point two places to the left.
